for its handling of the disarmament issue was defeated in the House of Commons tonight by 308 votes to 249 - a Government majority of 59.

— on which the debate took place — by a token amount of £5.

This is a traditional way for ! an opposition to express dissatisfaction with Government

The vote came after a debate on disarmament in which Mr Duncan Sandys, Minister of Defence, had envisaged, after an agreement on arms cuts, the setting up of-a world security authority under the United Nations with an international arms inspectorate and an internationwas "a hopeful sign."

Bargain Sought Britain would go to these meetings to try to get the best bargain she could about nuclear and conventional disarmament. "We shall try to get a bargain in which suspension of tests.1s linked with the cut-off (of fissile material for making weapons) and in which nuclear disarmament bears a relationship to conventional disarmament."

Mr Philip Noel-Baker, one of the Labour opposition's experts on disarmament matters, said he did not ask the Government to trust the Russians but to test them by proposing mutual guarantees from which trust

made the following comment on the protest made in Peking to the British Charge d'Affaires: There is in the ordinary way no prohibition on the flying of the national flags of any country - in . Hongkong, The Hongkong Govrenment is, however, concerned to preserve peace and order and, therefore, discourages the extensive or frequent flying of national flags in such a way or on such occasions as may tend to provoke incidents or a breach of the peace. "This is especially true on occasions such as May 1, when the flying, of the flag has a quasi-political significance and such occasions are not regarded by the Director of Education as sustable for celebration by schools.

"It was in accordance with this polloy that a request by eight schools only to fly the Chinese national flag on May I was not granted by the Director and also that a request by the Sun Klu (Hsinchiae) Middle School to celebrate its anniversary on May 10 with a programme of a political naturo was likewise refused."

As the world championship match approaches the halfway stage, it seems to be becoming increasingly full of cautious and long - winded manoeuvring for position.

Botvinnik, who still retains the two games lead won by his the two games lead won by his surprise opening strategy at the start of the match, seems increasingly concerned to be content just to hold on to his lead and risk nothing. Psychologically, these tactics are good; for Smyslov, needing to reduce the margin at any cost, decided in the ninth game to make an all-out sacrificial attack in a style guite alien to his normal technique of exploiting positional advantages.

HAGAN HITS HONGKONG FOR SIX

Matthews — Soccer's Strolling Minstrel — Puts On Grand Frolic For Fans

By I. M. MACTAVISH

A new chapter was written in Hongkong's football history at the Hongkong Stadium last night. In the years to come nearly 30,000 fortunate fans will be able to boast that they were present when Blackpool turned on a display of soccer such as we may not see here again in a long, long time.

In a stadium struck dumb in astonishment or roaring in admiration, Blackpool swamped the Combined Chinese to the tune of 10 goals to one and it could, oh so easily, have been twice as many.

For ten minutes this was a serious contest but once the visitors got their noses in front it was a soccer slaughter of the innocent.
